PUMPKIN SHOW SETTING NEW RECORD

Maine Still Flames, But Other Fires Dying

DEATH TOLL 18, 40 MILLION LOSS, 8,000 HOMELESS

Positive Evidence Found Of Incendiarism In Several Fires

BOSTON, Oct. 25—Forest fires which have raged for nearly a week in New England were generally reported "controlled or confined" today in all six states except Maine where flames still were roaring throughout the state.

The New England death toll from the fires has reached 18 and damage was estimated in excess of forty million dollars.

Maine, its heart eaten out by fiery blasts, was still aflame on three fronts, from the Portsmouth, N. H., border on the south all the way to Machias, just a few lines from the Canadian line.

Dozens of communities continued to be menaced by the flaming swath as upwards of 140,000 acres already lay in blackened ruins.

Maine's homeless were estimated at 8,000.

MOST STUNNING aftermath of the evacuations was the declaration that there was "positive evidence" that a number of the death-dealing and destructive Maine fires were set. Joseph A. P. Flynn, state arson chief, said:

"We have positive evidence that two major fires are the work of incendiaries."

State police questioned at least 20 suspects. Two were reported arrested in the Hollis-Buxton area. The two were found with an automobile loaded with excelsior and matches.

Near Portland, Me., Girl Scouts discovered a still-warm, oil-soaked wick, and oil sticks were found in still another scene of a major blaze.

Bar Harbor, two-thirds in ruins, battled on against smoldering blazes. At Seal Harbor—to the south—the fire matched anything that has been seen in the last 24 hours. Fire fighters described the area as "hell on earth."

Perhaps, the most furious of all the conflagrations was raging.

'OHIO PLAN' TO TELL CITIZENS WHAT TO EAT

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 25—Governor Herbert's food conservation committee urged Ohioans today to eat those foods that are in plentiful supply and which are as cheap or cheaper than they were a year ago.

Joseph B. Hall, president of the Kroger Co. of Cincinnati and chairman of the committee Herbert appointed at the request of President Truman, said that the program to be drafted would "tell people what foods to eat rather than what not to eat."

He said there were some 132 foods in such plentiful supply that their prices were lower than a year ago.

Hall said the program was to be known as the "Ohio Plan." Herbert interlarded with a prediction that it would become a model for the other 47 states.

Final details of the plan are to be worked out at a meeting next Friday.

COOPER HEADS BOARD FOR FAIR RELOCATION

TRUMAN MAPS RELIEF TRAIL

President Cites Need For War On High Prices And Aid To Europe

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25—President Truman began work today on the blueprint he will submit to an emergency congress to solve the "compelling" problems of "high prices at home and hunger and cold abroad."

The chief executive is expected to make a personal appearance before a joint session of congress when it convenes Nov. 17 to emphasize the urgency for "comprehensive legislation" to:

1. Deal with "inflation, high prices, and the high cost of living."

2. Provide 642 million dollars for stop-gap aid to France and Italy in addition to an undefined sum for occupation costs in Germany, Japan and Korea.

In his radio "fireside chat" to the nation last night, a grave-voiced president warned:

"Our domestic prosperity is endangered by the threat of inflation."

TWO DEAD, THREE HURT IN FIRE AT CLEVELAND

CLEVELAND, Oct. 25—Two men were killed and three firemen seriously burned today when a $400,000 blaze swept through the sprawling east side Cleveland plant of the Perma Stain Company.

No immediate identification was made of the victims, but they were believed to be the plant night watchman, and a shipping clerk.

The firemen were caught in the explosion of a 55-gallon drum of inflammable thinner used in treating shingles manufactured by the company.

The firemen reportedly rushed from the building with their clothing ablaze. They threw themselves into a puddle of water to extinguish the flames.

21 Film Personalities Expected To Provide Fireworks At Inquiry

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25—Twenty-one Hollywood personalities were under notice today that their testimony will be required next week before the house un-American activities committee in its probe of Communism in the movie industry.

Rep. Thomas (R) N. J., committee chairman said that still other motion picture actors writers and directors might be added to the list of witnesses and that the hearings would consume at least another week. They began Monday.

With the completion of testimony yesterday by Walt Disney, who accused Communist of attempting to gain control of his studios, the committee had pretty well exhausted its list of "friendly" witnesses.

Beginning Monday, with perhaps a few exceptions, the committee will be confronted with "hostile" witnesses, many of whom have been characterized as Communists or party sympathizers.

Eric Johnston, president of the Motion Picture Association of America, was reportedly preparing to make a strong statement critical of the committee when he testifies Monday.

Fireworks are expected when Hollywood screen writers John Howard Lawson, Dalton Trumbull, Alvah Bessie and Emmet Lavery take the stand next week. The fourmen have been advised they may be called Monday.

Lawson has been described during the hearings as the

EIGHT LIQUOR INSPECTORS FOR STATE OUSTED

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 25—Eight state liquor department inspectors were fired today at the end of 90-day probationary periods because of unsatisfactory work.

Enforcement Chief Donald T. Geyer said that the inspectors had "failed to get desired results and their work to-date has been deemed inefficient."

COAL PRODUCTION UP

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25—Estimates of bituminous coal production in the United States for the week ended Oct. 18 were set today at approximately 12 million, 600 thousand net tons, compared with 12 million, 787 thousand tons for the same period in 1946. Output for the year through Oct. 18 was 13.6 per cent ahead of last year.

New York Prepares Solemn Greeting For Boys, Girls Killed In Europe

NEW YORK, Oct. 25—Half a hundred empty railroad cars cast sombre shadows across the Brooklyn army base this afternoon.

Scores of servicemen—Army, Navy, Marine and Air Corps war veterans—stood around, the black band of mourning on their left arms, waiting to escort the passengers aboard whichever car their reservations called for.

Forty-eight state flags, each paired with the flowing stars and stripes, decorated pier number three—the old pier where many a fighting man said his last goodbye to his homeland.

Tomorrow they come home—for tomorrow, the Army transport Joseph V. Connolly comes up the North river, carrying 6,200 of the first of the European war dead to return.

Mayor Bill O'Dwyer of New York City and city greeter Grover Whalen will head the group of those bidding the boys welcome home.

NATION'S STILL TO BE CLOSED AT MIDNIGHT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25—Charles Luckman, chairman of the citizens' food committee, said today that more than 95 per cent of the nation's distilling capacity will shut down at midnight for a 60-day period.

Luckman said he was "highly gratified" at the response of distillers and alcohol producers to President Truman's request.

"This action constitutes a major contribution to the committee's urgent task of providing an additional 100 million bushels of grain for the hungry people of Europe this winter."

WAR MONGERING STORM IN U. N. NEARS CLIMAX

Torrent Of Russ Criticism Aimed Against U. S. Proves Boomerang

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., Oct. 25—The United Nations storm over "war mongering" is nearing its climax today following a blistering duel in which Russia's Andrei Vishinsky crossed swords with Warren R. Austin and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The torrent of words poured out by the Soviet bloc against the United States—in the opinion of practically all western delegates—has proved a boomerang.

Vishinsky's resolution apparently will be buried under a landslide vote.

In an effort to counteract the rising tide of opposition, Vishinsky took the floor once more before the political and security committee.

He hurled unrestrained charges of war incitement against the United States.

U. S. Delegate Austin answered Vishinsky. He called the Russian attacks "a propaganda campaign to cast doubts on the sincerity and peaceful intentions of America."

Mrs. Roosevelt swung hard against Vishinsky's attacks in the U. N. social committee. She said the United States government is "gravely concerned" over the Soviet-dominated press with its "distortions" and "half truths."

AIR FORCE TO ASK BIG BOOST IN PERSONNEL

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25—An informed source said today that the Air Force has asked the congressional air policy board to recommend that the air wing be increased to 70 groups with 401,000 men.

The request reportedly called for creation of 27 new National Guard groups to back up the present air force of 316,000 men.

In submitting the request an Air Force spokesman was quoted as having declared that "it is dangerous to assume that any country would take 15 years to build up a war potential able to attack the United States."

The air force was said to have asked also that the congressional board recommend that 2,200 military airplanes be produced each year. In its last appropriation request, the air force asked for 1,699 planes and got 590.

Meanwhile, Sen. Brewster (R) Maine, said he will urge the congressional group to head Bernard Baruch's call for a "ready" policy toward Communist Russia—which Baruch made before the senate war investigating committee.

CAB Probes Air Crash Fatal To 52

Mystery Fire Believed To Have Wrecked Controls By Luxury Liner

BRYCE CANYON, Utah, Oct. 25—The grim task of probing into the burned wreckage of the super luxury airliner that carried 52 persons to their deaths near Bryce Canyon got underway today.

The coast-to-coast United Air Lines "Mainliner" crashed head-on into a cliff yesterday while approaching an emergency airport after a mysterious fire was discovered in its baggage compartment.

Among the dead were 47 passengers, including two infants, and a crew of five.

Just beyond the lip of the arroyo into which the plane crashed was a brush-covered plateau on which a safe landing might have been made if the airliner had been five feet higher.

Civil Aeronautics Board authorities were at the scene to make their investigation into the disaster, one of the largest in the history of American aviation.

PRESUMABLY the tail controls of the plane burned away or vital tail surfaces were destroyed before the huge luxury liner could be brought to a landing.

The plane was bound from Los Angeles to New York with a stop at Chicago on its ill-fated flight.

Among the passengers were Claude D. Ryan, a former president of Montgomery Ward and Company; Jack Guenther, managing editor of Look magazine; and Jeff Burkett, rookie punting star of the Chicago Cardinals, professional football team.

The dramatic story of the pilot's gallant efforts to save the passengers was contained in terse radio messages sent from the ill-fated plane to the United Air Lines dispatcher's office at Salt Lake City.

The first message from the pilot, Capt. MacMillen, describing the fatal flight said:

"WE HAVE a baggage fire aboard."

"We are coming to Bryce Canyon."

906 Women And 288 Men File Applications For Jobs In New Factory

The OSSES Friday night dispatched to company officials at New York City the list of names of 788 women and 240 men. It was explained Saturday that a supplemental list will be sent and that acceptance of applications will be continued at the office of the OSSES through Wednesday.

The name of the company and a formal announcement of placing the factory in Circleville are expected to follow a meeting of the board of directors soon at New York City.

Registration of potential employees of a proposed new $2,500,000 factory in Circleville passed the 1,200 mark at noon Saturday and the acceptance of applications will continue for a few more days. The list Saturday was composed of 906 women and 288 men.

To assure establishment of the new factory the Ohio State Employment Service and the Chamber of Commerce launched a joint campaign early this week to procure applications from not less than 500 women and 100 men.

State Dignitaries Guests Of City, Participate In Band Parade

With continuation of rainless weather the 41st annual Pumpkin Show in Circleville was expected to set a new attendance record for the show's 40-year history by midnight Saturday. The estimated total attendance exclusive of Saturday is 100,000. This shatters all previous records. Show officials expect 40 Saturday afternoon and night unless rain falls.

The Pumpkin Show has attracted the attention of state dignitaries. In the highly colorful band parade staged through fun-swept streets Friday night occupants of the car of Mayor Ben H. Gordon included State Director of Agriculture Frank Farnsworth, former Gov. Myers Y. Cooper, Cincinnati; Mrs. Lottie M. Randolph, assistant State Agricultural director; Amos Meyer, chief of the bureau of markets of the Ohio Department of Agriculture and D. Robert James, assistant manager of the Ohio State Fair.

A series of open-air contests and band concerts will feature the Pumpkin Show Saturday.

Friday's crowd was estimated at 38,000 to 40,000 by Mayor Gordon, president, and by Ned Dresbach, secretary of the show organization.

UNLESS RAIN interferes the four-day attendance will undoubtedly far pass the 140,000 mark by the time the final curtain falls on the show late Saturday night.

Following the high successful baby parade Friday afternoon band concerts were presented at

DRY WEATHER IN MIDWEST MAY BOOST PRICES

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25—Agriculture department officials warned today that prolonged dry weather in the Midwest may handicap government acquisition of grain for foreign relief and contribute to even higher wheat prices.

The officials explained that the drought is delaying the planting of the winter wheat crop and farmers may be inclined to hold their present stocks of grain in anticipation of a small wheat yield next June.

The warning was issued on the eve of the 60-day shutdown by the nation's distilling industry to save grain for Europe. Administration officials predict that the shutdown, which begins at midnight, will save at least ten million bushels of grain.

Food Conservation Chief Charles Luckman plans to go ahead with the whisky-holiday despite threats by the AFL-distillery workers union to seek court injunctions to halt the shutdown.

Government efforts to acquire 570 million bushels of grain for foreign relief will be hindered considerably if farmers decline to sell their wheat left over from last winter's bumper crop.

Attempt was under way Saturday to ascertain the identity of a woman about 25 years old who was jailed at 3:30 a. m. Saturday by Vern L. Pontious and Carl Radcliff, Pickaway county sheriff's deputies.

Patrons at Sam Scott's restaurant at South Bloomfield noticed her hiding at the rear of that establishment. They took her inside the building but when she appeared dazed and unable to disclose her identity they telephoned Sheriff Charles Radcliff.

Deputy Pontious said the woman seemed to be suffering from either amnesia or "dope." She was expensively attired, including a costly fur coat bearing a New York City label. The woman was placed in the county jail for safe-keeping while efforts were exerted to establish her identity. Under questioning she was incoherent and while definitely not under the influence of liquor she was unable to give any information leading to her identification.

BALKANS, AGAIN A CENTER OF UNREST, CONTINUE AS THREAT TO WORLD PEACE

By JOHN J. SEMBOWER
Central Press Correspondent

WASHINGTON—The Balkan "tinder box" is smoking again. Diplomats anxiously watching the tense international situation consider the troubled southeastern part of Europe a likely place where the flames of general war could break forth any time.

The grim thought that a single outburst of some sort might detonate a general war, perhaps of such magnitude as to win the name of World War III, has been growing of late.

Associate Justice Robert Jackson of the Supreme Court, in one of his infrequent public addresses since serving as prosecutor of the high Nazis at Nuremberg, voiced fear that a single "incident" may embroil the world in another major conflict.

Prof. Edward A. Smils of the University of Chicago and the London School of Economics, a leading authority on international affairs, warns that "the present war of nerves may blow up into a war of reality."

Whenever there is an explosive mixture among the nations, the tumultuous Balkans almost invariably take over the role of being the booster charge that might set off the general conflagration.

WHAT STIRS concern now over gathering turmoil in the Balkans is that in the modern world an international holocaust spreads like wildfire from the place where it starts. The troubles of the Balkans have long since ceased to be private disputes among the little nations.

The world learned that bitter lesson when the Archduke Franz Ferdinand and his archduchess were assassinated in 1914 in Sarajevo in Bosnia (now Yugoslavia) and World War I developed like a chain reaction.

When World War II was rumbling around the horizon, Mussolini began tossing matches at the Balkan powder keg with his Albanian invasion.

With the United States and Russian world rivalry creating a great spark gap between the two spheres of influence, there are pessimists who visualize that the spark will jump over the Balkans, setting off another general explosion.

For the last 2,500 years, the Balkans have acted as a sparkplug that detonated one international and political explosion after another.

JUST WHY the little nations that comprise the Balkan group should play such a villainous role in world history has puzzled many who tried to solve the riddle.

The strategic location of the Balkans between the east and west is blamed for part of it. The diversity of national and racial backgrounds there, making for continual friction between the peoples, is viewed as another major cause.

Geographers always have found it hard to locate the Balkans as a well-defined region on the map, although they recognize that the political upheavals there make it something very real nevertheless.

Consequently the northern limit usually is set at the Danube. There are six main population stocks: Albanians, Vlachs or nomadic shepherds, Greeks, Serbs, Bulgars and Turks.

All but the shepherds show intense national consciousness and continually scrap with each other. There are three distinct regions, each with its own topography, climate and culture.

Serbia now is merged in conglomerate Yugoslavia—the Serb-Croat-Slovene state created after World War I. In addition to extensive territories outside the peninsula, Tito's realm includes Bosnia, Herzegovina, Montenegro, Dalmatia and part of Macedonia—all names linked with warfare and strife through the ages.

No region of the world can furnish such a catalog of barbaric invasions. The Goths started them in 1200.

At right—riding to their rendezvous with death are the Archduke Franz Ferdinand and the archduchess on that fatal June 28, 1914.

After the Goths came the Vandals from the Oder and Attila's Huns from Asia. Each wave of barbarians sank into the pocket, settled down, and became prey for later arrivals. The wild and unsettled spirits seem to flare up regularly in the populations even after all these years.

It was their incessant fighting among themselves that encouraged the Ottoman Turks to pick this region as "the soft underside of Europe," a phrase invented centuries later by Winston Churchill contemplating invasion routes into Hitler's Reich.

Never local affairs, conflicts in the Balkans have a way of profoundly influencing all world history although they may start like backyard brawls. It was Turkish capture of Constantinople in 1453 at the start of their invasion that closed routes to the East and sent Columbus on a hunt that ended in discovery of the New World.

The Turks reached their high water mark in the futile siege of Vienna in 1683, and began to crumble in the manner of all invaders sooner or later in the perpetual political chaos of the Balkans.

THE SIX Balkan peoples stubbornly preserved their languages and customs, and by the nineteenth century had largely won back their independence. Greece in 1829, Serbia in 1830, and Bulgaria in 1878.

Outsiders always took an active interest in the turmoil, and idealistic Lord Byron, brilliant English poet, lost his life fighting for Greek independence.

One of the world's longest reigns of general peace was rudely broken in 1913 when the Balkan League of Greece, Serbia, Bulgaria and Montenegro attacked and defeated Turkey. Albania was born in that bloody affray. Then Bulgaria fell out with the others, and was beaten.

Bulgaria twice in two world wars has picked the wrong side, joining both with the Kaiser and Hitler. However, the Bulgarians, now allied with Albania and Yugoslavia as satellites of Soviet Russia, still are agitating, this time apparently determined to isolate Greece, backed by the United States, much as Bulgaria once was cut off by the others after the victory over Turkey.

The current world situation finds the Balkans seething, and the Truman Doctrine impresses many observers as being aimed at again making the Balkans a high water mark of a penetration, this time the extension of Russian communism.

CHARGES by the United States before the United Nations Security Council offer elaborate evidence of undercover warfare by Albania, still technically at war with Greece; Bulgaria and Yugoslavia against the Greeks, citing many border raids since last May 20.

Never backward when an international brawl is anywhere in prospect, the Bulgarians accuse the United States of aggression for backing Greece against the other three.

Russian vetoes in the United Nations already have blocked five moves to halt the aggressions of the Russian-backed Balkans. Meanwhile, the Greeks, relying on the $300,000,000 loan from the United States as their hope of financing defense, plan an army of 300,000 men, and look forward to a steady flow of U. S. material, including a thousand trucks and weapons carriers, 120 tons of spare parts, and 19,000 tons of food.

So the Balkans are in their element again—storm clouds overhead with rumblings of international thunder and lightning. A lot has happened in 2,000 years, but the balancing point of world power still may rest right there, a battleground of the ages and a dark and bloody ground if there ever was one.

CAB Probes Air Crash Fatal To 52

"The plane is smoke filled. The fellows are unable to put out the fire yet."

There was a silence of five minutes and then Capt. MacMillen radioed:

"Tail fire going out. We may get down and we may not. We'll try to land the best place we can."

The third message said:

"May make it."

A minute later the pilot still was hopeful. He flashed:

"Think we have a chance. . . . approaching strip."

Then, four minutes later, the CAA observation post reported a tower of smoke one mile east of Bryce Canyon.

Witnesses said that the entire area around the place where the plane crashed was seared as if by a giant blowtorch.

Four of the ship's engines were hurled as much as 200 yards away from the spot where the plane crashed. The body of a stewardess, parts of the plane and mail were found 400 feet away.

"THE PEACE of the world is endangered by hunger and cold in other lands."

Mr. Truman declared: "These obstacles (to peace and prosperity) must be overcome by prompt and courageous action."

"Legislation by the congress is essential."

"Inflation must be stopped before it is too late. It is within our power to stop it."

The President told the American people that it is this dual-crisis, one inextricably linked with the other, that impelled him to summon the congress into special session.

In his radio address, Mr. Truman frankly stated that voluntary methods under the free enterprise system have failed to keep prices within reasonable limits.

THE PRESIDENT DECLARED:

"The American people now have a compelling need for protection from the dangers of price inflation and the rising cost of living."

"They recognize this need and are asking for the protection to which they are entitled."

"The government must assume a larger share of the responsibility for putting an end to excessive prices and the hardships and dangers which accompany them."

GOVERNOR Robert F. Bradford warned that the respite might be temporary and he added that the "whole bay state is a tinder box." He broadcast an appeal for "cooperation and common sense" until the crisis has passed.

Rain—the one great aid which could end the danger—still was nowhere in sight. The weather bureau reported more warm, dry and sunny weather was in the offing. Also forecast was occasional very light but "unimportant" showers, expected to be of no help.

The Mt. Desert hospital reported during the night that 250 fire-fighters—mostly soldiers rushed to the area from Dow field—have been treated for burns and injuries.

COLUMBUS MAN IS INJURED IN FREAK ACCIDENT

Frederick Downing, 47, Columbus, was suffering Saturday from head lacerations, an elbow injury, and other hurts suffered Friday in a "freak" traffic accident on the Five Points road near the Era road in Pickaway county.

Sheriff's Deputies Vern L. Pontious and Carl Radcliff, who investigated the mishap, said an F. and R. Lazarus department store truck, Columbus, was parked by Mr. Downing preparatory to making a merchandise delivery at the home of Ray McCafferty.

Mr. Downing opened the rear steel doors of the truck. The wind whipped one door out of his hand. It swung wide and extended over the highway. The door was struck by the passing lime truck operated by Elmer R. Needles, 36, Route 1, Gahanna. The impact swung the door away from the highway and caught Mr. Downing between the door and the body of his truck. The injured man was treated by a Mt. Sterling physician and was then removed to his home.

Church bells will toll along the way as the coffin-carrying caisson passes by. There will be bare heads and men at salute all along the route.

There will be wreaths laid gently, and taps blown softly. The ceremony will be for all those aboard the ship which will sit swaying gently in the waves of the pier throughout the proceedings.

THEN THE body will be returned to the ship, which will ease away from the pier and redock at the Brooklyn base from whence so many of its passengers first sailed.

From there, they scatter to the other fourteen "distribution centers" from which they will be escorted to their final resting places—as decided by the next of kin in each case.

"RADIO RANCH"

CAB Probes Air Crash Fatal To 52

"The plane is smoke filled."

"The fellows are unable to put out the fire yet."

There was a silence of five minutes and then Capt. MacMillen radioed:

"Tail fire going out."

"We may get down and we may not. We'll try to land the best place we can."

The third message said:

"May make it."

A minute later the pilot still was hopeful. He flashed:

"Think we have a chance. . . approaching strip."

Then, four minutes later, the CAA observation post reported a tower of smoke one mile east of Bryce Canyon.

Witnesses said that the entire area around the place where the plane crashed was seared as if by a giant blowtorch.

Four of the ship's engines were hurled as much as 200 yards away from the spot where the plane crashed. The body of a stewardess, parts of the plane and mail were found 400 feet away.

flation. . . the road is being paved for a recession or depression.

"THE PEACE of the world is endangered by hunger and cold in other lands."

Mr. Truman declared:

"These obstacles (to peace and prosperity) must be overcome by prompt and courageous action."

"Legislation by the congress is essential."

"Inflation must be stopped before it is too late. It is within our power to stop it."

The President told the American people that it is this dual-crisis, one inextricably linked with the other, that impelled him to summon the congress into special session.

In his radio address, Mr. Truman frankly stated that voluntary methods under the free enterprise system have failed to keep prices within reasonable limits.

THE PRESIDENT declared:

"The American people now have a compelling need for protection from the dangers of price inflation and the rising cost of living."

"They recognize this need and are asking for the protection to which they are entitled."

"The government must assume a larger share of the responsibility for putting an end to excessive prices and the hardships and dangers which accompany them."

ing far to the north in the Jonesboro and Machias districts. An estimated 1,000 persons were reported homeless there as farms and cottages quickly became reduced to ash heaps.

Although fires still burned dangerously in twelve communities in Massachusetts, state officials reported for the first time in a week that its woodland blazes were for the moment controlled.

GOVERNOR Robert F. Bradford warned that the respite might be temporary and he added that the "whole bay state is a tinder box." He broadcast an appeal for "cooperation and common sense" until the crisis has passed.

Rain—the one great aid which could end the danger—still was nowhere in sight. The weather bureau reported more warm, dry and sunny weather was in the offing. Also forecast was occasional very light but "unimportant" showers, expected to be of no help.

Most of Bar Harbor and nearly 300 of the surrounding swank estates lay in gutted ruins.

The Mt. Desert hospital reported during the night that 250 fire-fighters — mostly soldiers rushed to the area from Dow field—have been treated for burns and injuries.

THOUSANDS of volunteers, including such prominent "cottage" as John D. Rockefeller Jr., fought the turpentine-fed flames sweeping through the pines and spruce woods of Mt. Desert island. The Rockefeller's have a 94-room "cottage" endangered by the blaze.

GASOLINE PRICE GOES UP CENT A GALLON

The Standard Oil Company (Ohio) has increased its wholesale and retail price of gasoline one cent a gallon. The price of special naphtha, kerosene, heating oil, and Diesel fuels is likewise increased by one cent a gallon, and the price of heavy fuel oils by one-half cent.

The price increases reflect the October 15 price advance in crude oil, and the increase in railroad freight rates announced October 13.

REBUILDING OF SOCIETY NEEDED PASTOR SAYS

Introducing the sermon Sunday morning at the First Evangelical United Brethren Church, East Main Street, the Rev. Carl L. Wilson, says, "Spiritual Reconstruction is the need of our present day society." Jeremiah 18:1-6 will be the scriptural background for the topic, "Spiritual Reconstruction." In developing the theme, the Rev. Mr. Wilson will prove that the social order needs rebuilding and will offer suggestions for reconstruction process.

New Member and Promotion Day will be observed in the Church School. General Superintendent, Hillis Hall, will direct the recognition of new class members and the promotion exercise. In the Morning Worship the auxiliary organizations and Sunday School classes will join in a "Cooperation Day" emphasis with each group arranging to have all resident members in the worship services.

6:00 p. m. in the Sunday School Room the Youth Fellowship will conduct the regular lesson discussion with Mrs. Carl L. Wilson in charge.

To further the denominational Kingdom Advance Program a union service at the Calvary Church, E. Mill and Pickaway Streets, has been arranged. Two sound films, "The Seeds of Destiny" and "Not By Bread Alone" will be shown. These films depict most vividly the need of people in war devastated areas. Dedication of Children in Baptism will be observed at the morning worship. Dr. Kneisley will speak from the subject: "A Little Child," a story narrated in the Book of Judges, where a man named Manoh and his wife were visited by an angel and told that they were to have a son. Manoh's response was a prayer that should find a place in every sensitive heart. He said, "O Lord, I pray Thee, let the man of God whom Thou didst send unto us, come again, and tell us how we are to train the child that is to be born." That prayer truly belongs to us. For what are we to do with the babies, that are, and that are to be born? No greater question confronts us today.

WORDS OF THE WISE
Intellect alone however exalted, without strong feelings, without even, irritable sensibility, would be only like an immense magazine of powder, if there were no such element as fire in the natural world. It is the heart which is the spring and fountain of all eloquence. —(Lord Erskine)

Religion in Practice

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for October 26 is James 1:2; Matthew 25:34-46, the Memory Verse being James 1:22, "Be ye doers of the word, and not hearers only.")

THE EPISTLE of James was written, in his own words, "to the twelve tribes which are scattered abroad." That means James was writing to Christian Jews who were being persecuted for their faith not only by the Romans, but by their own countrymen who resented the new religion. He not only wants to strengthen their faith, but to point out to them that they should accompany that faith with right living, with good works that testify to the fact that they are followers of the Master who did good to others all the days He was on earth.

He tells them also to be joyful when temptation assails them, because resisting temptation strengthens their characters. If one lacks the wisdom to resist temptation, he can go to God, and it shall be given him. Only he must have faith and not waver. "For he that wavereth is like a wave of the sea driven with the wind and tossed." Waves are unstable. The wind drives them first one way and then another, and an unstable man also has no resistance to the thoughts that come to him. On the one hand he may trust, but then doubts come to him.

Also if a man is poor, he should be glad because his poverty exalts him. The rich man should consider that he may be brought low. His riches may fade; he cannot take any part of them with him, and when he dies it is as if he had never been. But "Blessed is the man that endureth temptation: for when he is tried, he shall receive the crown of life, which the Lord hath promised to them that love Him."

Wrath Worketh Not Righteousness
"Let every man be swift to hear, slow to speak, slow to wrath: For the wrath of man worketh not the righteousness of God." Also, "Be ye doers of the word, and not hearers only, deceiving your own selves. For if any be a hearer of the word and not a doer, he is like unto a man beholding his natural face in a glass: "For he beholdeth himself, and goeth his way, and straightway forgetteth what manner of man he was."

Can any of you remember what you look like a few minutes after looking at yourself in the mirror? We all can remind ourselves, however, that we are Christians, and that we should not only profess that faith but should act like Christians.

"If any man among you seem to be religious, and brideth not his tongue, but deceiveth his own heart, this man's religion is vain," says James.

"Pure religion and undefiled before God and the Father, is this. To visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction, and to keep himself unspotted from the world."

Even a small child can be taught and understand that he may hold his temper when angered, and use his tongue not to utter angry words, but to speak with kindness and sympathy. Through all temptations, if man (or a child) can keep himself "unspotted from the world," can walk in purity and truth, then he indeed will please God. This too can be explained to the children in your class so that they can understand it.

James next calls attention to the average person's treatment of the wealthy person and the poor one. "For if there come into your assembly a man with a gold ring, in goodly apparel, and there come in also a poor man in vile raiment; And ye have respect to him that weareth the gay clothing, and say unto him, Sit thou here in a good place; and say to the poor, Stand thou there, or sit here under my footstool. Are ye not then partial in yourselves, and are become judges of evil thoughts?"

Applies to Children
Even children are affected by fine clothes and inclined to make a fuss over other children who are unusually well dressed. God looketh on the heart, not at clothes, and so should we.

Further James says "If a brother or sister be naked, and destitute of daily food, and you say to them, 'Depart in peace, be ye warmed and filled; notwithstanding ye gave them not those things which are needful to the body; what doth it profit?"

"Even so faith, if it hath not works, is dead, being alone."

We have not much space to comment on Jesus' words concerning those that shall inherit the kingdom, which is found in Matthew 25. The King is judging the people, and he calls those on His right hand to inherit the kingdom prepared for them, for when He was hungry, thirsty, ill, or in prison, they ministered to Him. When they asked when they did this, the answer was: "Verily I say unto you, Inasmuch as ye did it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto Me."

From days immemorial, higher ground has been chosen for religious shrines, it being a popular belief that such places are nearer to heaven. A high place in its particular environment is atop the Cuyahoga cliffs of the Palisades, on the Hudson river.

These cliffs tower more than five hundred feet above the famous waterway. Their rugged beauty viewed from below, is awe-inspiring. The grandeur of the scenic outlook from atop the rocks testifies to the omnipotence of the Mighty Architect of creation.

WORLD RELIEF FILMS TO BE SHOWN SUNDAY

At the Sunday evening meeting to be held at Calvary Evangelical United Brethren Church, there will be shown two reels of sound moving pictures concerning the present conditions in Europe and what the Church World Service is trying to do to meet these needs. The second film is "Not By Bread Alone" and shows what the Church World Service program is trying to do to meet these tragic conditions which exist in Europe. These films have been obtained from the Board of Missions of the Evangelical United Brethren Church and are a part of the Kingdom Advance Program of that denomination which is for the purpose of helping our own E.U.B. people in Europe, where there are several conferences. The denomination is raising two million dollars for food and relief plus the sending of clothing, shoes and used fats for the making of soap for these peoples.

In the morning worship service there will be a baptismal service for infants and children. The pastor will preach on the subject of "Holy Baptism".

He said, "O Lord, I pray Thee, let the man of God whom Thou didst send unto us, come again, and tell us how we are to train the child that is to be born." That prayer truly belongs to us. For what are we to do with the babies, that are, and that are to be born? No greater question confronts us today.

WORDS OF THE WISE

Intellect alone however exalted, without strong feelings,—without even, irritable sensibility,—would be only like an immense magazine of powder, if there were no such element as fire in the natural world. It is the heart which is the spring and fountain of all eloquence.

Religion in Practice

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for October 26 is James 1:2; Matthew 23:34-46, the Memory Verse being James 1:22, "Be ye doers of the word, and not hearers only.")

THE EPISTLE of James was written, in his own words, "to the twelve tribes which are scattered abroad." That means James was writing to Christian Jews who were being persecuted for their faith not only by the Romans, but by their own countrymen who resented the new religion.

He not only wants to strengthen their faith, but to point out to them that they should accompany that faith with right living, with good works that testify to the fact that they are followers of the Master who did good to others all the days He was on earth.

He tells them also to be joyful when temptation assails them, because resisting temptation strengthens their characters. If one lacks the wisdom to resist temptation, he can go to God, "and it shall be given him." Only he must have faith and not waver. "For he that wavereth is like a wave of the sea driven with the wind and tossed." Waves are unstable. The wind drives them first one way and then another, and an unstable man also has no resistance to the thoughts that come to him. On the one hand he may trust, but then doubts come to him.

Also if a man is poor, he should be glad because his poverty exalts him. The rich man should consider that he may be brought low. His riches may fade; he cannot take any part of them with him, and when he dies it is as if he had never been. But "Blessed is the man that endureth temptation: for when he is tried, he shall receive the crown of life, which the Lord hath promised to them that love Him."

Wrath Worketh Not Righteousness "Let every man be swift to hear, slow to speak, slow to wrath: For the wrath of man worketh not the righteousness of God." Also, "Be ye doers of the word, and not hearers only, deceiving your own selves. For if any be a hearer of the word and not a doer, he is like unto a man beholding his natural face in a glass."

"For he beholdeth himself, and goeth his way, and straightway forgetteth what manner of man he was."

Can any of you remember what you look like a few minutes after looking at yourself in the mirror? We all can remind ourselves, however, that we are Christians, and that we should not only profess that faith but should act like Christians.

"If any man among you seem to be religious, and brideth not his tongue, but deceiveth his own heart, this man's religion is vain," says James.

"Pure religion and undefiled before God and the Father, is this. To visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction, and to keep himself unspotted from the world."

Even a small child can be taught and understand that he may hold his temper when angered, and use his tongue not to utter angry words, but to speak with kindness and sympathy. Through all temptations if man (or a child) can keep himself "unspotted from the world," can walk in purity and truth, then he indeed will please God. This too can be explained to the children in your class so that they can understand it.

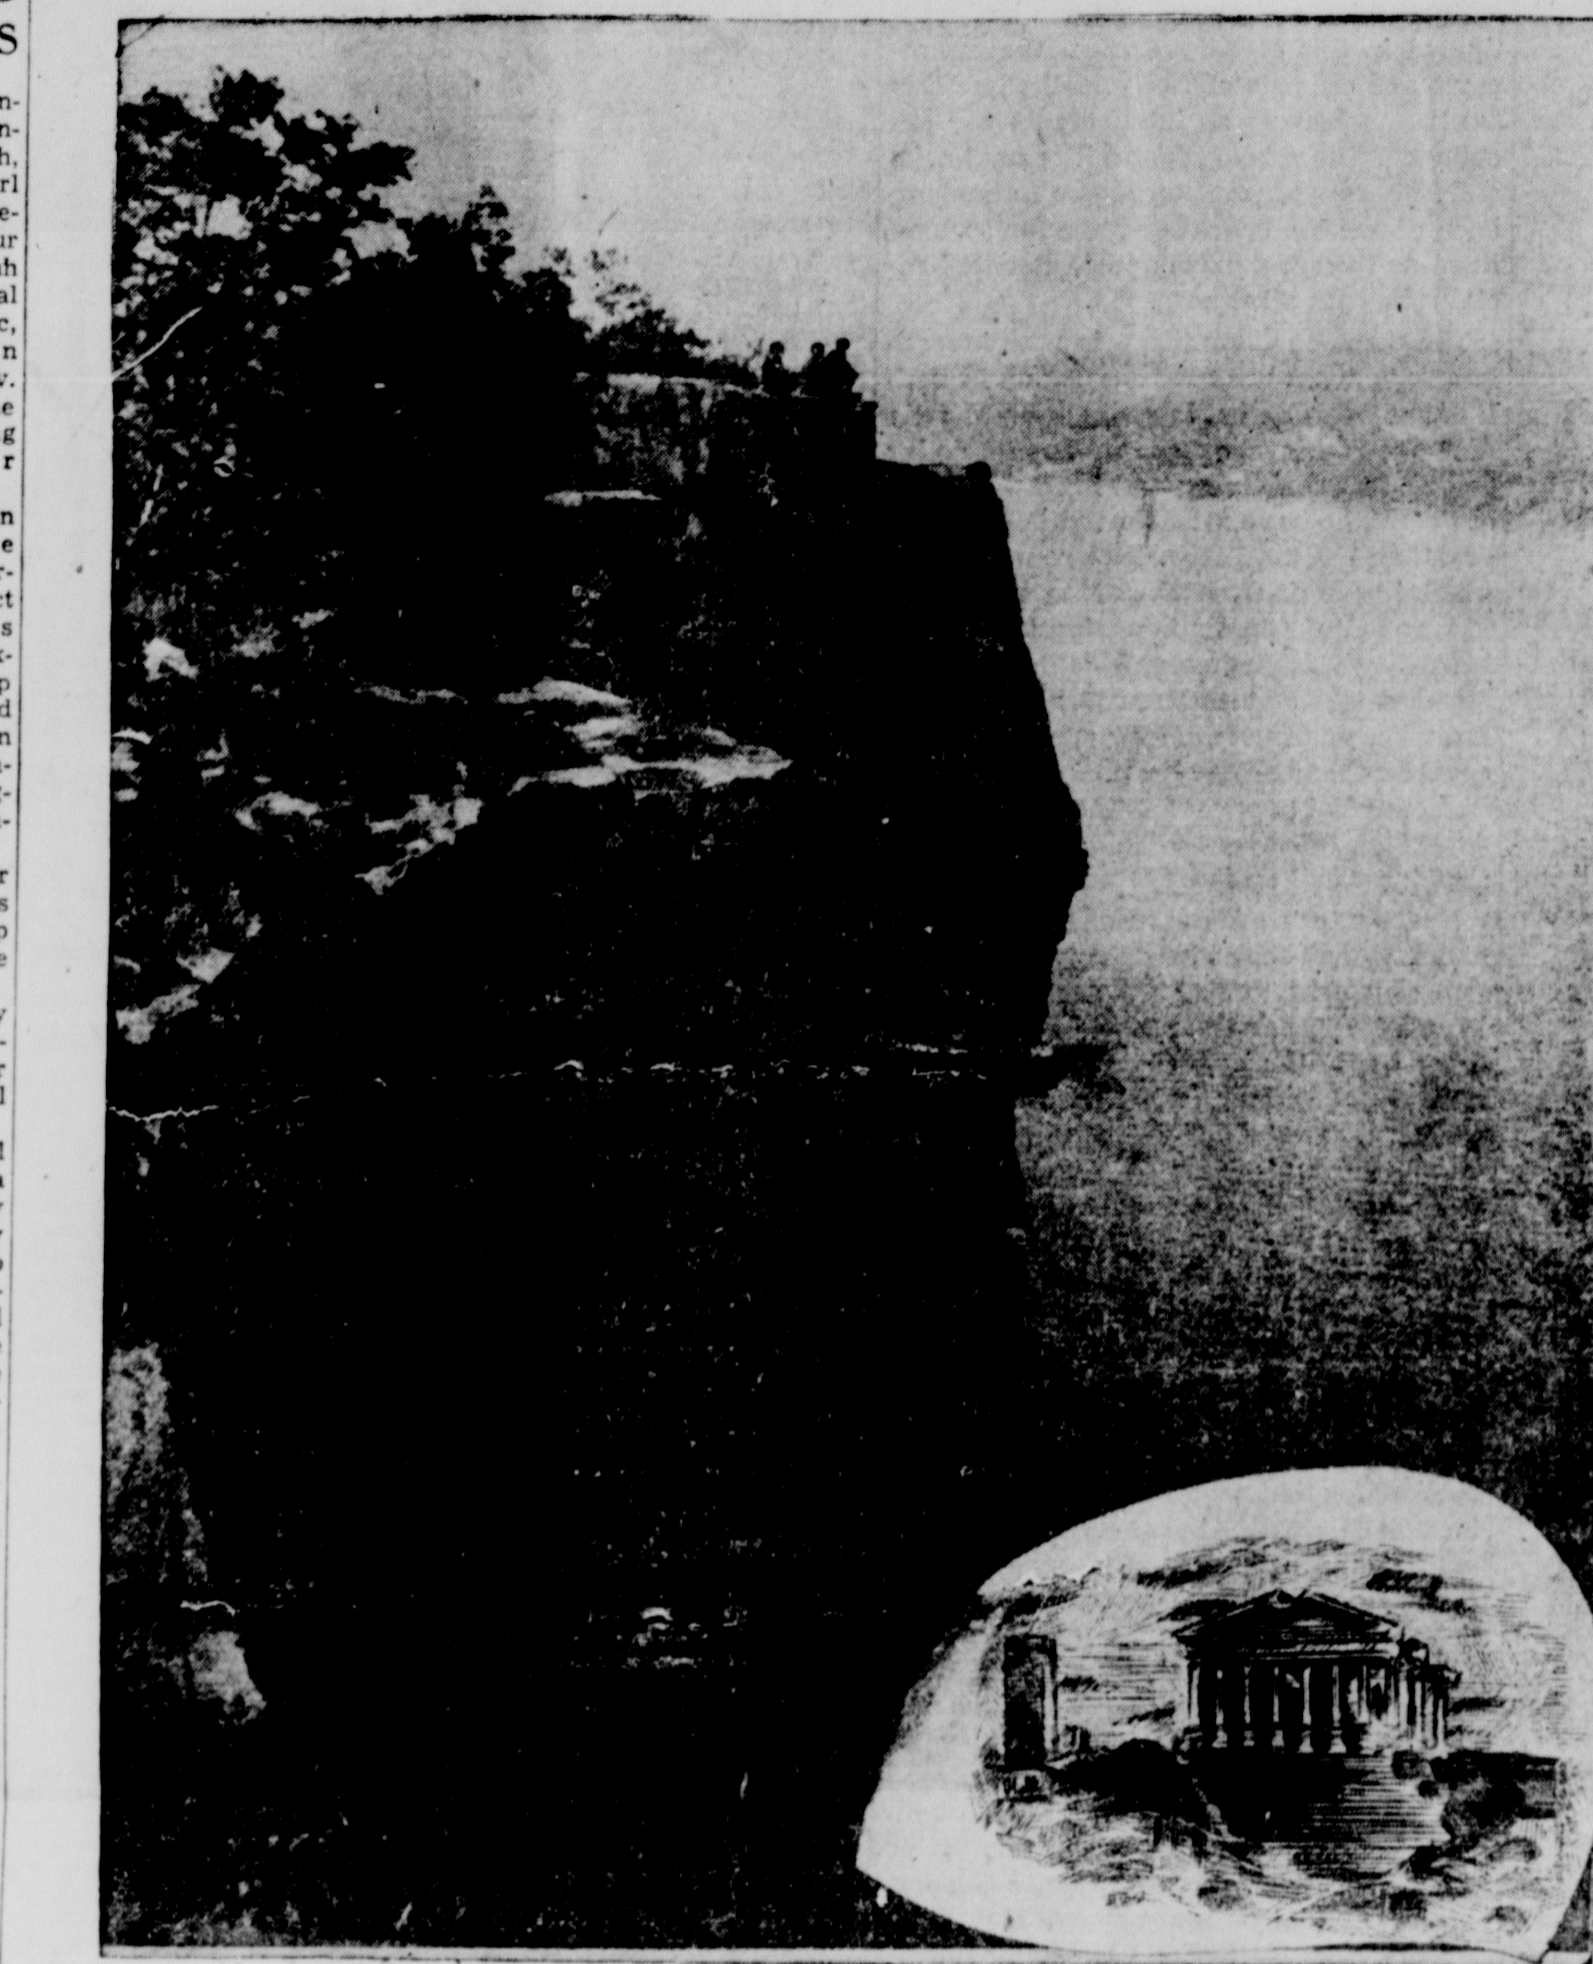

James next calls attention to the average person's treatment of the wealthy person and the poor one. "For if there come into your assembly a man with a gold ring, in goodly apparel, and there come in also a poor man in vile raiment; And ye have respect to him that weareth the gay clothing, and say unto him, Sit thou here in a good place; and say to the poor, Stand thou there, or sit here under my footstool. Are ye not then partial in yourselves, and are become judges of evil thoughts?"

Applies to Children
Even children are affected by fine clothes and inclined to make a fuss over other children who are unusually well dressed. God looketh on the heart, not at clothes, and so should we.

Further James says, "If a brother or sister be naked, and destitute of daily food, and you say to him, 'Depart in peace, be ye warmed and filled; notwithstanding ye gave them not those things which are needful to the body: what doth it profit?"

"Even so faith, if it hath not works, is dead, being alone."

We have not much space to comment on Jesus' words concerning those that shall inherit the kingdom, which is found in Matthew 25. The King is judging the people, and he calls those on His right hand to inherit the kingdom prepared for them, for when He was hungry, thirsty, ill, or in prison, they ministered to Him. When they asked when they did this, the answer was: "Verily I say unto you, Inasmuch as ye did it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto Me."

From days immemorial, higher ground has been chosen for religious shrines, it being a popular belief that such places are nearer to heaven. A high place in its particular environment is atop the Coytesville cliffs of the Palisades, on the Hudson river.

These cliffs tower more than five hundred feet above the famous waterway. Their rugged beauty viewed from below, is awe-inspiring. The grandeur of the scenic outlook from atop the rocks testifies to the omnipotence of the Mighty Architect of creation.

The spiritual uplift afforded by the natural wonders of the world remind us that many things were created in the interest of man and for his happiness in this mundane world, by a God who gave his own precious Son that man might have life and have it more abundantly.

Such breath-taking scenic masterpieces as the Palisades of the Hudson, awaken in man spiritual inspiration which causes him to feel God's eternal presence. Such light may come to man in the church of his choice regularly by faithful attendance, worship and service.

Tap the spiritual values of life in God's house through regular church attendance. Give yourself to Him and "all these things shall be added unto you." Tell your family and your friends about the blessings your church affords to all who worship God within its sacred walls. Live among men so that your inspiration causes them to glorify God on the highest.

WORLD RELIEF FILMS TO BE SHOWN SUNDAY

At the Sunday evening meeting to be held at Calvary Evangelical United Brethren Church there will be shown two reels of sound moving pictures concerning the present conditions in Europe and what the Church World Service is trying to do to meet these needs. The first film is entitled "The Seeds of Destiny" and is a War Department film which is actual shots of various parts of Europe and the conditions that prevail as a result of the war.

The second film is "Not By Bread Alone" and shows what the Church World Service program is trying to do to meet these tragic conditions which exist in Europe. These films have been obtained from the Board of Missions of the Evangelical United Brethren Church and are a part of the Kingdom Advance Program of that denomination which is for the purpose of helping our own E.U.B. people in Europe, where there are several conferences. The denomination is raising two million dollars for food and relief plus the sending of clothing, shoes and used fats for the making of soap for these peoples.

In the morning worship service there will be a baptismal service for infants and children. The pastor will preach on the subject of "Holy Baptism".

Ben F. Jensen, Iowa, immediately supervised the sending of a wire to Washington ordering an illumination engineer to travel to the shrine and estimate the cost of floodlighting.

AN ENGLISH SPANIARD

COMPARATIVELY few fathers can afford to give their daughters $370,000 weddings, but the Duke of Alba can. This Spanish nobleman is reported to have spent that much on this occasion, one of the items being a $50,000 wedding dress. Needless to add, he is regarded as the wealthiest Spaniard alive.

Less well known about him is the fact that his name is Fitz-James Stuart, and that he is descended from the English royal house of Stuart. When the last Stuart king, James II, was expelled from England, his son James went to France, and later became Duke of Berwick and marshal in the French army. In 1707 he, an Englishman commanding a French army in the war of the Spanish Succession, defeated at Almanza an English army led by a Frenchman, Ruvigny.

In this war Spain and France were allies against England, Holland and some other countries. Adding to the confusion is the fact that Ruvigny later became Earl of Galway in Ireland, and Berwick became founder of the House of Alba, now represented by this lavish father, the 17th duke in the line.

Apparently there are more reasons than one why the British point with pride to the fact that Princess Elizabeth will have an austerity wedding, and her bridal gown costs only one one-hundredth as much as that of the Spanish bride.

SAVINGS GOING DOWN

SAVINGS are getting lower and lower in Cleveland, reports the bulletin of that city's Cleveland Trust Company. Not only are the actual bank savings being drawn upon, but where they are still added to, a smaller percentage of income is set aside for saving.

Obviously trouble is ahead. If the standard of living can be maintained only by cutting into the reserve, something serious will happen when that reserve is gone. High prices are threatening American thrift. Increased production, harder work by everyone is the only sure way to bring them down.

SAMSON'S MUSCLE

UNCLE SAM shows his muscle again. After bearing the brunt of a great war, he announces that he can uphold the exhausted nations of western Europe "without seriously draining its resources". This is doubtless the most impressive task of the kind ever undertaken.

It must be realized, however, that the nation's financial power is not unlimited, and it is essential that the burden's weight will be held in proper bounds.

A new book has the title, "The Mental Side of Golf". It will be news to many that there is a mental side to golf.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

Everything and everybody can be investigated in this country except the mummies and puppets of Hollywood who have set themselves up as intellectuals par excellence. These hoofers and literary hacks and imitators of gangsters have for so long been above the law, they have for so long lived as though a class apart, elevated socially beyond all fitness.

The Thomas Committee is now investigating just what has been going on in Bedlam and some smart lawyers and publicity men are rearing to make an honest dollar yelling and screaming and imitating some of those who have misbehaved before Congressional Committees. In a word, Hollywood has written a script to make the Thomas Committee's investigation ridiculous. Howard Hughes and Johnny Meyer did that to Senators Brewster and Ferguson who, unaccustomed to vaudeville, discovered themselves smeared for trying to find out what happened to the money of the American taxpayer—$40,000,000 of it. Or is that too small an item to notice?

Now comes a group of Hollywood mimics and such and they plan to reject investigation as a violation of freedom of speech. They hire Robert W. Kenny and Bartley Crum as their lawyers and they will put on a show unless the Committee sits on them properly. The right of a Congressional Committee to investigate practically anything has been well substantiated by Supreme Court decisions. The committee acts not as a trial court but as a grand jury and therefore may employ discretions beyond the rules of evidence which limit trial procedures in a court of law. A committee may or may not permit counsel to assist but rarely, if ever, tolerates cross-examination, for that process is useful to protect innocence but does not serve to uncover the entire truth. The committee does not find them guilty or absolve them; it seeks to determine what is for the general welfare.

Larry Parks apparently assumes the role of leader among those who have hired counsel to raise constitutional questions which they, as lawyers, know have already been answered. According to the "Daily Worker", among those who have joined Parks in this effort are Paulette Goddard, Henry Fonda, Gregory Peck, Van Heflin, Myrna Loy, Katharine Hepburn, Burgess Meredith, David Gardner, Dorothy McGuire, Marsha Hunt, and Paul Henreid.

What the Thomas Committee wants to find out is why so many motion pictures contain globs of Communist propaganda. This is very difficult to establish either for the motion picture or the radio.

I once had a curious experience about that. I was listening to one of my favorite programs on the radio, over the more conservative network, sponsored by probably the most capitalistic of American business groups and issued by an advertising firm whose head has fought Communism tooth and nail. Yet the script was straight Communist propaganda as though issued by the Comintern. I sent for the script and underlined the tricky lines and showed just how it was done. That happens all the time.

DIET AND HEALTH

A Cancer Affecting Men

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

IT is unfortunate that cancer is such a silent disease. Many other less deadly disorders betray themselves almost at once in the symptoms of illness and discomfort they cause, but not cancer. It moves so stealthily, particularly in certain areas of the body, that its hold on its victims is often unbreakable long before they are aware of its presence.

This is why doctors say that regular and thorough health audits are the best insurance against cancer. Frequent, careful check-ups give us almost our only opportunity for early discovery of cancer in its curable stages.

Cancer of the prostate in men is one of the most serious forms of this most treacherous of all diseases. Quite often it gives no warning signs at all until after it has progressed to such a degree that removal by operation is no longer possible.

Within the last few years, however, it has been found that treatment with extracts from the female sex glands will prolong the life of men with far-advanced cancer of the prostate. These extracts, known as estrogens, will frequently, when used with other measures, give such patients an additional three years of life. And they make this life worthwhile by relieving the severe pain which always accompanies cancer in its later stages.

In some cases, the cancer may have grown to such an extent that there is blocking of the outlet of the bladder. In such cases, operation through an instrument known as a cystoscope, which can be passed into the bladder, for removal of the prostate tissue is performed.

Pain in prostate cancer may also be relieved by operation for removal of the sex glands. Vitamins and preparations for increasing the amount of coloring of the blood, and injections of blood into a vein are given when they are indicated.

Treatment with the sulfonamide products and penicillin helps to overcome infection, and such treatment also is of aid in reducing pain.

When pain recurs after removal of the sex glands, the estrogens are given in the smallest effective doses, and the amount is increased as needed.

Additional relief from pain is obtained in three out of five patients by X-ray treatments of the pituitary gland which is located at the base of the brain.

In cancer, what is known as metastasis or spreading may occur. This means that cells are carried by the blood to other parts of the body where they locate and grow. X-ray treatment of these areas where metastasis has occurred also may be helpful.

In some few instances, unfortunately, none of these measures seemed to be helpful. In fact, they not only do not stop the growth of the cancer but even stimulate it.

Every man of middle age or beyond should be alert to the dangers of this form of cancer. Since the symptoms which call attention to it come so late, he should not hesitate to have periodic examinations made for the special purpose of discovering whether or not changes which indicate the presence of a tumor growth are occurring in the prostate gland. If such examinations were the rule rather than the exception many lives could be saved every year.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

B. A.: What could be done to relieve the itch caused by wool?

Answer: It is likely that in order to eliminate this disorder it will be necessary for you to avoid contact with the wool. There are protective ointments which have been employed to protect the skin in persons who are sensitive to material with which they work. However, it is not certain that the use of such ointment would completely prevent the difficulty you are having.

A skin specialist should be consulted concerning this matter.

CHAPTER FOURTEEN

ONE MORNING when Allison was wearing a dress that buttoned down the back, she asked Miss Winstead if she would button it for her.

"Of course," Winnie said, opening the door of her room wider. "If you'll come in where there's more light."

While her room under the sloping eaves contained Teresa's cast-off furniture (Teresa's professional touch made it nonetheless cozy and charming) there were touches of Winnie's taste and personality in it also. There was a fern lifting its leafy hands to the sun in the window. There was a religious book and a confession magazine lying uncomfortably side by side. Her taste ran in pairs, for there was a picture of Jesus Christ and one of Franklin Delano Roosevelt on the marble-topped table. Her worn, old-fashioned suit case in the corner suggested preparation for flight at a moment's notice.

When she had buttoned Allison's dress with rather unsteady hands, Allison said, "Thank you. I'll be glad when dresses have zippers again." Looking about the room she said, "You have a very nice room, Miss Winstead."

Winnie's dull eyes softened until they almost caressed the objects in the room.

"Yes, I have a good home here with Mrs. Tarrant. And I love Suzy. I'm a graduate nurse. But my health . . . I was sick for a long time. For a long time I couldn't work."

"I'm glad you have such a good home now," Allison said. "And I like to help you with Suzy if she'll let me. I get home in plenty of time in the afternoon to take her for a walk. I haven't suggested it before because while she doesn't cry when she sees me any more, she ignores my existence."

The woman looked as if it were hard for her to believe that someone was actually offering to lighten her task. Not strong either mentally or physically, she could not defend herself. What little dignity she had preserved kept her from a devouring self-pity. The absent look that often came to her eyes suggested that in her imagination she found a happier existence.

"Well, perhaps—perhaps I could leave her with you," Winnie said. "But I'd better speak with Mrs. Tarrant about it. I always do as she wishes."

That afternoon Allison was in her room reading when she heard soft noises from Suzy's room. Suzy was supposed to be taking her nap and Miss Winstead was on the third floor.

Quietly Allison got up and went down the hall and opened the door of Suzy's room.

The little figure in pink striped pajamas turned away from a low table and glared at her.

Suzy was like a stranger, no one's child, Allison thought. If she were fair she could think of her as Teresa's child, and if she were dark she could think of her as Sam's child. But Suzy looked only like herself, a sullen, humorless, beautiful child.

"So you're having a tea party," Allison said, glancing at the small colored dishes and at the doll that occupied a small chair. "Will you invite me?"

"No."

"But I'd like to come."

"No."

"Then I won't invite you to my party. I'm going to have a party in my room."

Leaving the door open, she went downstairs (Annette was marketing) and poured ginger ale into two glasses and put cookies on a plate. Then she walked slowly by Suzy's staring face and to her own room. Clanking the glasses together to make a festive sound, she sat down and waited.

Presently Suzy was coming stealthily down the hall. In the doorway she paused abruptly and looked at the golden beverage.

Allison said, "You may come to my party if you'll let me come to yours."

The child considered the proposition, but she didn't say anything. Allison said, "But you'll have to come in and get it. These cookies, by the way, are very good. They make me think of Halloween. We always had ginger cookies at home on Halloween."

"What's that?"

"Halloween? Oh, that's a night you get dressed up. People dress up into all sorts of things. They dress like Mickey Mouse or like an elephant or like Mother Goose. It's all in fun. It's a day and a night to play and big people as well as little people like to dress in funny costumes. What would you like to be?"

Suzy didn't answer. She stared. "Would you like to be an elephant?" Allison asked.

"Elephants are big."

"But there are little elephants as there are little people . . . If you don't drink your ginger ale the ice will melt and it won't be good."

Suzy steeled herself for the adventure across the room. She came forth slowly and took the glass in her thin hands.

"Could I be an elephant?" she asked.

"Of course. But we'll have to talk about it a little more if you'll let me come down to your room to a party sometime. And after Halloween we'll talk about Christmas. Do you like Christmas?"

"I love Christmas."

"Here, have a cookie. What do you want for Christmas?"

"The bell rang downstairs. . . . Allison sat perfectly still as if powerless to move. Was it Sam? She looked at Sam's daughter whose wondering glance told her that her own expression had changed. It was obvious even to Suzy. How could it fail to be obvious to him in the frank, afternoon light?

You don't know until it happens to you, she thought, that love is a kind of purifier and a light that shines through your countenance. An honest and shameless light that wants its beauty to shine on the outside. And you don't "until it happens to you" that everything you see is suffused with your love and that nothing is ever truly yours again because your love has created a passionate desire for sharing.

She came out of her room with Suzy at her heels just as Miss Winstead was coming down the steps.

"There's someone at the door," Allison said.

But when she opened the door a boy thrust a box in her hand and swiftly departed. A box from a florist. Flowers for Teresa. Not Sam, but flowers for Teresa from Philip. She remembered that this was the night Teresa was going to the theatre.

When Teresa came down from her nightgown 20 minutes with her daughter she looked puzzled and amused.

"She's terribly excited about something tonight. I couldn't make head or tail of it. Something about an elephant. I took her to the zoo, but that was last summer."

Teresa poured herself a cocktail. Allison didn't take one tonight.

"I was telling her about Halloween, that children could dress up like elephants on Halloween."

"Really? She was positively intrigued. She's been too young for me to do anything about it before and I've always thought it a silly, crude custom anyway. Besides, I'll probably be out of town at the end of the month. In Florida for at least a week. That's when I'm depending on you."

"I forgot to tell you. Flowers came for you."

"Philip always sends me flowers when we go to the theatre. If I'm not dressed when he comes, will you meet him and chat with him until I come down?"

STARRSAY—

For Saturday, October 25

THIS may legitimately be a day set aside for happiness, merriment and jollification, in consideration of preceding exceptional activities or accomplishments, which have won approbation and emoluments outside the commonplace and workaday.

Charm, beauty, the lures and appurtenances of art, culture, social or romantic achievement or adventure, call for proper recognition and justify celebration. Any needful business should flourish.

Birthday Forecast

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of happy and flourishing conditions, in which health, home and business affiliations are given proper recognition with reward in gestures of hospitality, parties, celebrations and romantic fulfillments.

Beauty, art, culture and higher expressions of success and aspiration may be acclaimed in felicitations. All business pertaining to such programs should be pleasantly accomplished and should thrive.

A child born on this day should be gracious, cultured, inclined to the higher aspects of gracious living, its business pertaining to its finer objectives.

For Sunday, October 26

SUNDAY'S horoscope is a most propitious one for nearly all pursuits of the day with ecclesiastic, clerical and philanthropic affairs active and flourishing, also much pleasure and festivity in connection with such promotion and preferment from persons of high station. However any reckless, erratic or unconventional moves might create separations or estrangements.

On the Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of recognition and preferment from those in advanced position, who may be disposed to confer favors and tokens of esteem. All affairs of scope and importance should thrive, with financial and social standing enhanced. However such prestige and popularity could provoke some strange, irregular or surprising climax with estrangements or disruption. Shun emotionalism and erratic moves.

A child born this day should be well equipped for an important place in life, with popularity and financial influence. Any tendency to eccentric or emotional conduct should be given early supervision.

"The Authority on Authorities"

IT'S REALLY A DISEASE

A DISEASE which afflicts a lot of high-ranking players nowadays is what might be called "Exactness." Its victims are a bit like dope fiends in that they assume it voluntarily for the sake of the effects they get from it despite its harmful results. The principal symptoms are an overweening strain to show their partners the precise amount of strength in their hands, by bidding a new suit and later indicating the good fit they have for his major, instead of raising directly to one height or another. By so doing, they help their opponents to put up a perfect defense against them and thereby take fewer tricks than if they kept the other side in the dark.

The bidding given first is what came where M. G. Murray, president of the St. Petersburg Bridge League, sat South with Dr. E. Ranney as his partner against the vice-president, Fletcher Henderson, in the West and Miss Blanche Jolley—all fine players. Dr. Ranney's forthright strong raise to 3-Hearts caused the defense to have a minimum of useful information, and it eventually proved worth a trick to his side.

Mr. Henderson, knowing nothing about the side suits of his opponents, led the club J. Miss Jolley, with no guidance on exactly what West and South had in the suit, showed it to be un-risky by the encouraging 9. Seeing this, Mr. Murray ducked and the club 10 was led, which he won with the A. Two heart tricks, followed by clubs for a diamond discard, enabled him to make an extra trick. Where too much information was given by the kind of bidding in the second sequence above, two diamond tricks were lost, plus a club.

NEW YORK—The time is early night. The setting is the dark flatlands of Long Island, for we are coming back to the city by train, but it could be a New Mexican mesa. We lumber slowly westward, from the outer reaches of the island, and the silhouettes of the trees make little mountains against the deep blue sky, the massive apartment buildings with their flat tops make sullen, theatrical plateaus. Beauty is not easily appreciated from the confines of a dusty, rattly old Long Island railroad car, but it lies outside our grime-streaked windows tonight and we wrap ourselves in it like a friendly cloak.

Far out on the island are the palaces and mansions which the songwriters have advised us we do not compare with home, sweet home, but we are passing towns and villages closer to the city.

We see no palaces. In these towns, the gray, anonymous little houses, with their precious backyards and their omnipresent clothes-dryers, are strung along like cells in a Sing Sing block, but now their harsh rows are softened by the night. Kitchen lights glow. A back door is open; a woman in an apron stands framed in the doorway. The next minute, she is gone and only the shapeless trees and the dark sky remain.

The wheels of the train mutter jerkily. "I will, I won't, I will, I won't," and looking out the window you get a swift glimpse of the road bed, its gravel dirty with oil and rust.

ONE BY ONE the stations go by—Hollis, Queens Village, Kew Gardens, Forest Hills—and it is like the re-playing of a phonograph record . . . the patch of lights, the main street, the shimmering

CHECK HEATING EQUIPMENT FOR WINTER'S USE

"In grandmother's day, Fall housecleaning usually started with stoves. The big living-room stove was brought out from the basement or storeroom for its annual blacking and polishing. Before the first fire was built, the chimney and stovepipes were thoroughly cleaned," says Thelma Beall, home management specialist, Ohio State University, Columbus.

To start Fall house cleaning by furnishing the heating equipment is still a good idea, Miss Beall and housing engineers of the U. S. Department of Agriculture point out. They suggest this cleaning be done before snappy Fall days call for constant heat in a home.

All fireplaces, flues, and chimneys should be checked to make sure they are sound and in good repair. Roof fires may be caused by sparks escaping through cracks in the chimney. Remember that, in a few years, mortar can dry out and crumble and that bricks may become loose. Before fires are started in the Fall, all chimney cracks should be cemented.

The home management specialist urges that stoves, furnaces, and other heating equipment be put in good condition to operate safely. Stove pipes should be checked for rust holes and worn spots. All joints should be fire resistant.

If roofs need repair, housing engineers suggest they be fixed at once. If a roof needs replacement the new one should be fire resistant.

Miss Beall says, "We would avoid many disastrous winter fires if home owners checked, cleaned, and repaired heating equipment carefully before starting fires in the Fall."

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Most manufacturers of aluminum agree that to keep the utensils clean, all that is necessary is to wash them in hot, soapy water each time they are used, rinse and dry them well. Coffee pots should be rinsed thoroughly before and after using. If food burns and sticks to aluminum utensils, soak them at once in warm water. Never scrape aluminum with a metal spoon or knife, only with a wooden spoon, and scour with fine steel wool, preferably impregnated with soap.

A new kitchen aid is a portable beater that can be used in any bowl or saucepan for whipping, beating and mashing—everything from cream to heavy batters. It works on A. C. or D. C. and has a speed adjuster.

Proper storage and cooking are important in helping to conserve the essential vitamins of vegetables. They become limp, unappetizing, flat and tasteless when they lose their vitamin C content.

THESE DAYS

In an unrealistic decision, Judge Fuld, of the Court of Appeals of the State of New York, declared it libelous to call any person a Communist. As very few Communists are probably members of the party, which is an international conspiracy for world revolution in the interest of Soviet Russia, many persons can serve that party, perform its tasks, damage the United States, corrupt our children, deprive their minds, pervert our textbooks, radio scripts and motion pictures, and pose as Republicans, Democrats, and even as church members. They change their names as they change their faces and hide their crimes under the protection of the law which is designed to safeguard decent persons from the excesses of police power.

The public has, of course, recourse. I personally purchase no goods manufactured behind the Iron Curtain. I go to no movies in which known Communists are stars or which are written by Communists. I buy no products advertised on the radio whose sponsor what I accept as Communist-inspired programs. That is my privilege and choice. Nobody can force me to pay for what I do not wish to purchase. I can fight Communism with my consumer's dollar.

Opinions expressed by the writer in the column are the views of the author and not necessarily those of the Circleville Herald.

OHIOANS FARE BADLY AT HANDS OF SOUTHERNERS

By International News Service
There was one less undefeated Ohio college team in Ohio today.

Wilberforce college tumbled from the unbeaten ranks last night when it was whipped, 14 to 7, at Tennessee state.

Dayton university, previously beaten only once, also fared badly against a Tennessee foe. The university of Chattanooga outscored the invading Flyers, 19 to 13.

Youngstown salvaged a shred of honor for the Buckeye state in intercollegiate competition by tripping Central Michigan, 13 to 7.

In Ohio conference games, Wilmington upset Marietta, 12 to 6, and Heidelberg swamped Wittenberg, 37 to 13.

Today's Ohio college games: Findlay at Bluffton; Oberlin at Denison; Muskingum at Wooster; Ohio U. at Miami; Akron at Toledo; Cincinnati vs. Xavier; John Carroll vs. Case; Ohio Wesleyan at Depauw; Baldwin-Wallace at Western Reserve; Otterbein at Mt. Union; Hiram vs. Ashland at Chagrin Falls; Assumption at Defiance; Kent State at Bowling Green; Ohio Northern at Capital; Ohio State at Pittsburgh; Kenyon at Washash, and Rio Grande at Rose Poly.

MINOR INJURIES RIDDLE BROWNS FOR 49 GAME

BOYES SPRINGS, Cal., Oct. 25—The Cleveland Browns went through light drills today in a final practice session for their important joust tomorrow with the 49ers of San Francisco.

Coach Paul Brown's squad was riddled with minor injuries, but most of the regulars are expected to be ready to go. Of most concern was a stiff neck being suffered by Otto Graham, the Browns' sizzling quarterback.

A note of cheer was injected in the Browns training camp near Boyes Springs, however, with the continued improvement of Mickey Mayne, former Brooklyn Dodgers halfback who has been virtually useless this season because of various infections.

Coach Brown said Mayne most likely will be his starting right back against the 49ers. He added that Don Greenwood would be used for defensive work in that position while Edgar Jones is slated for offensive duties on the left side of the backfield.

A capacity crowd of nearly 60,000 is expected to fill Kezar stadium for the clash of the western division titans of the All-America conference. A victory for either team virtually will clinch divisional honors.

IRISH AGAIN TRY TO LOOK LIKE CHAMPS

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 25—Notre Dame tried once again today to look like the national champ it is supposed to be. Today's sacrifice to that end was Iowa.

Rudely dismissed from any chance of winning in pre-game evaluations, the Hawkeyes nevertheless arrived from the cornstalk plain sound of wind and body and ready to play football.

The Notre Dame squad, with the exception of halfback Bill Gompers, still out with an injured shoulder, was in perfect physical condition.

The game was Notre Dame's last before its annual one-two foray against the service schools. The Irish play Navy at Cleveland next Saturday, then return to South Bend for the grand finale of the Notre Dame Army series the week following.

THESE DAYS

In an unrealistic decision, Judge Fuld, of the Court of Appeals of the State of New York, declared it libelous to call any person a Communist. As very few Communists are probably members of the party, which is an international conspiracy for world revolution in the interest of Soviet Russia, many persons can serve that party, perform its tasks, damage the United States, corrupt our children, debase their minds, pervert our textbooks, radio scripts and motion pictures, and pose as Republicans, Democrats, and even as church members. They change their names as they change their faces and hide their crimes under the protection of the law which is designed to safeguard decent persons from the excesses of police power.

The public has, of course, recourse. I personally purchase no goods manufactured behind the Iron Curtain. I go to no movies in which known Communists are stars or which are written by Communists. I buy no products advertised on the radio whose radio whose manufacturers sponsor what I accept as Communist-inspired programs. That is my privilege and choice. No body can force me to pay for what I do not wish to purchase. I can fight Communism with my consumer's dollar.

OHIOANS FARE BADLY AT HANDS OF SOUTHERNERS

By International News Service

There was one less undefeated Ohio college team in Ohio today.

Wilberforce college tumbled from the unbeaten ranks last night when it was whipped, 14 to 7, at Tennessee state.

Dayton university, previously beaten only once, also fared badly against a Tennessee foe. The university of Chattanooga outscored the invading Flyers, 19 to 13.

Youngstown salvaged a shred of honor for the Buckeye state in intersectional competition by tripping Central Michigan, 13 to 7.

In Ohio conference games, Wilmington upset Marietta, 12 to 6, and Heidelberg swamped Wittenberg, 37 to 13.

Today's Ohio college games: Findlay at Bluffton; Oberlin at Denison; Muskingum at Wooster; Ohio U. at Miami; Akron at Toledo; Cincinnati vs. Xavier; John Carroll vs. Case; Ohio Wesleyan at Depauw; Baldwin-Wallace at Western Reserve; Otterbein at Mt. Union; Hiram vs. Ashland at Chagrin Falls; Assumption at Defiance; Kent State at Bowling Green; Ohio Northern at Capital; Ohio State at Pittsburgh; Kenyon at Wabash, and Rio Grande at Rose Poly.

MINOR INJURIES RIDDLE BROWNS FOR 49 GAME

BOYES SPRINGS, Cal., Oct. 25—The Cleveland Browns went through light drills today in a final practice session for their important joust tomorrow with the 49ers of San Francisco.

Coach Paul Brown's squad was riddled with minor injuries, but most of the regulars are expected to be ready to go. Of most concern was a stiff neck being suffered by Otto Graham, the Browns' sizzling quarterback.

A note of cheer was injected in the Browns training camp near Boyes Springs, however, with the continued improvement of Mickey Mayne, former Brooklyn Dodgers halfback who has been virtually useless this season because of various infections.

Coach Brown said Mayne most likely will be his starting right back against the 49ers. He added that Don Greenwood would be used for defensive work in that position while Edgar Jones is slated for offensive duties on the left side of the backfield.

A capacity crowd of nearly 60,000 is expected to fill Kezar stadium for the clash of the western division titans of the All-America conference. A victory for either team virtually will clinch divisional honors.

IRISH AGAIN TRY TO LOOK LIKE CHAMPS

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 25—Notre Dame tried once again today to look like the national champ it is supposed to be. Today's sacrifice to that end was Iowa.

Rudely dismissed from any chance of winning in pre-game evaluations, the Hawkeyes nevertheless arrived from the cornstalk plain sound of wind and body and ready to play football.

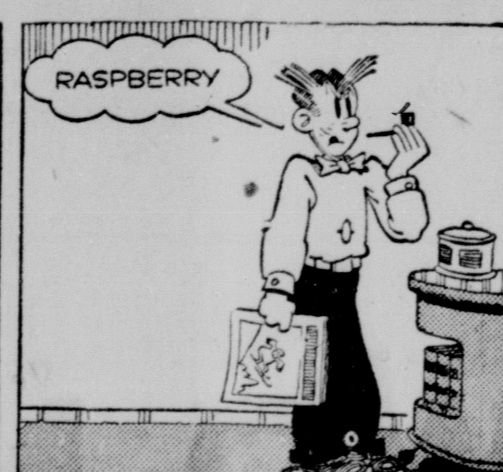

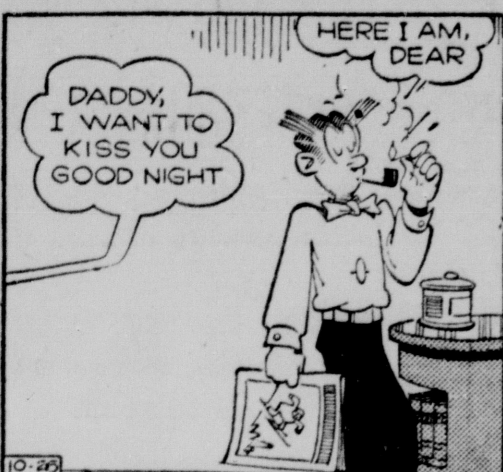

The Notre Dame squad, with the exception of halfback Bill Gompers, still out with an injured shoulder, was in perfect physical condition.

The game was Notre Dame's last before its annual one-two foray against the service schools. The Irish play Navy at Cleveland next Saturday, then return to South Bend for the grand finale of the Notre Dame-Army series the week following.

HOOSIERS AND CATS TO MEET BEFORE 45,000

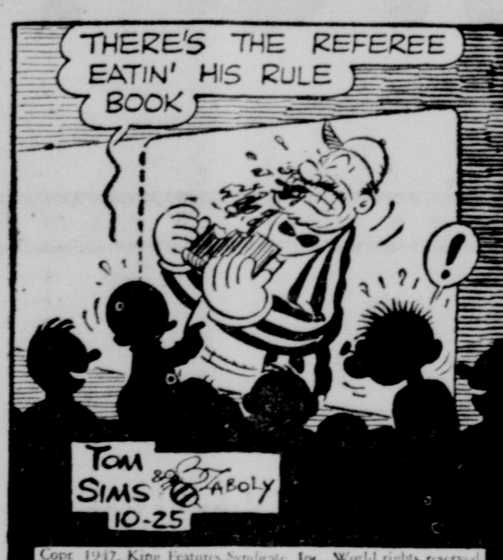

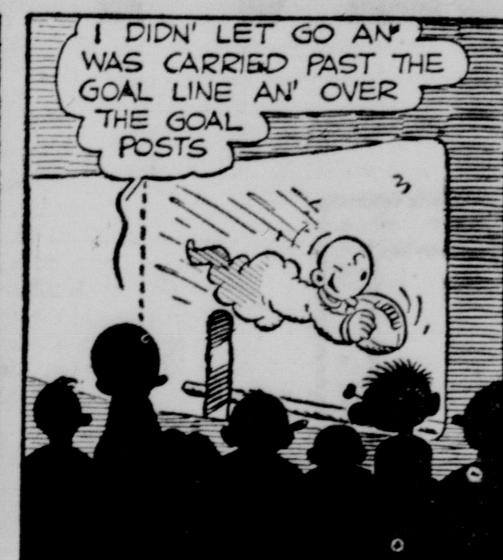

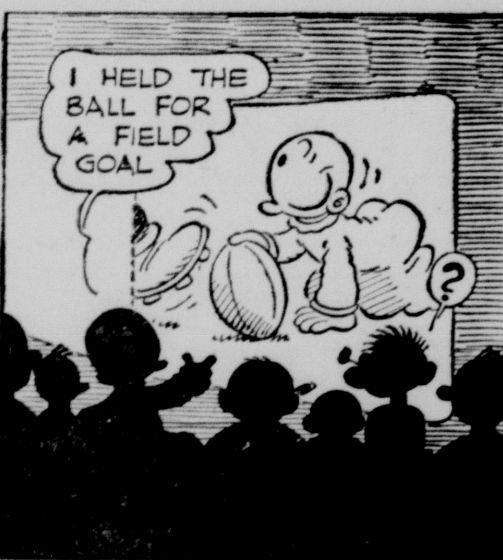

EVANSTON, Ill., Oct. 25—The touchdown-conscious football teams of Indiana and Northwestern got together for the 28th time before 45,000 fans today, and both were seeking their first triumph in 1947 Big Nine competition.

1. Would it be possible that a deposit of silt in a manufacturing town, in one year, could average 960 tons per square mile?
2. What is a canon?
3. What is numismatics?

Words of Wisdom
There wouldn't be half as much fun in the world if it weren't for children and men, and there ain't a mite of difference between them under their skins.—Ellen Glasgow.

Today's Horoscope
You should cultivate perseverance if today is the anniversary of your birth. You lose interest in what you are doing before its completion. You have great nervous energy and like a change. You are proud and always strive to appear at your best. You possess a keen sense of humor, are a pleasant conversationalist, and a great reader. The day is doubtful where promises, orders, commitments are concerned. Good and ill fortune strangely intertwine in your next year. Some happiness is foreseen which may be marred, however, by a misunderstanding. Guard against carelessness or indifference in business. Today's child will enjoy a modicum of good fortune and happiness, but will face a threat of loss through fraud.

Hints on Etiquette
It is correct in table service to serve the diners from the left and to remove the dishes also from the left. Drinks are served on the right side, and to avoid danger of knocking glasses over, dishes should be removed as well as served from the left.

Horoscope for Sunday
Your home is your castle and there are but few things outside of it that interest you. You are intellectual, conservative, artistic, enjoy reading and have considerable literary ability. You have a magnetic personality, enjoy the admiration of your friends, and have no real enemies. Adverse influences prevail today. Don't assume further obligations if possible. Old issues arise again. Inclines toward disappointment, trouble, loss, delays. A somewhat difficult, trying year lies ahead of you. Sudden unexpected adverse events, especially of a domestic nature, are evidenced. Some good fortune will materialize later. Defer all changes, courtship and marriage. Born today a child will be subject to unexpected disappointments in the home life, love and/or marriage, especially if born early in the afternoon. Moderate success is indicated, however.

One-Minute Test Answers
1. Yes, in Oldham, England, for the year ending March, 1915.
2. A law.
3. The science of coins and medals.

You should cultivate perseverance if today is the anniversary of your birth. You lose interest in what you are doing before its completion. You have great nervous energy and like a change. You are proud and always strive to appear at your best. You possess a keen sense of humor, are a pleasant conversationalist, and a great reader. The day is doubtful where promises, orders, commitments are concerned. Good and ill fortune strangely intertwine in your next year. Some happiness is foreseen which may be marred, however, by a misunderstanding. Guard against carelessness or indifference in business. Today's child will enjoy a modicum of good fortune and happiness, but will face a threat of loss through fraud.

Hints on Etiquette

It is correct in table service to serve the diners from the left and to remove the dishes also from the left. Drinks are served on the right side, and to avoid danger of knocking glasses over, dishes should be removed as well as served from the left.

John Griggs, narrator for the series, will assume the role of John Wellington Wells, compiler of the well-known book, "From Ghost to Ghost." For his initial Halloween broadcast he has compiled a special fifteen-minute program dealing with the origin of the Halloween celebration and legends and anecdotes that have sprung into being through the years.

On the remainder of the week-day broadcasts Griggs, as Wells, will narrate ghost stories by four of the world's most famous authors. He has chosen Edgar Allan Poe's chilling tale about "The Devil in the Belfry." Mark Twain's amusing "A Ghost Story" will be heard. John Kendrick Bangs' classical description of "The Water Ghost of Harrowby Hall" is the third special story chosen for the series. And the immortal Charles Dickens classic, "The Signalman," will climax the "Adventure Parade" Halloween programs.

On the Fred Allen Show last week, Fred was talking about substitutes for meatless Tuesdays. Portland suggested an invention she had just heard of, called a "Trumanburger." Fred had already heard of it and had the recipe at hand. The President puts two slices of bread on the piano-top then plays "One Meat Ball."

Edgar Bergen had some anxious moments on a recent broadcast when Mortimer's mouth failed to work. Right up until showtime Edgar tried everything he knew to get the little fellow's mouth open. Bergen read the first lines of the show with Mortimer hidden from view of the studio audience before finally repairing his injured cohort.

New buildings and improvements such as—Open class cattle barns, 4-H Club and open class swine barns, water facilities for people and livestock, roadways and landscaping, exhibit booths for Juvenile Granges, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Future Farmers, Camp Fire Girls, improved restroom facilities, covered grand stand, improved parking facilities and many others.
